Cookies

What are cookies?

(source: website Privacy Commission)

Cookies are small text files that can be stored on your computer when visiting websites. In this text file information is stored, such as your language preference for a website. When you visit the website again later, this cookie will be re-sent to the website. In this way the website recognizes your browser and, for example, your language preference can be remembered.

Cookies usually also have a due date. For example, some cookies are automatically deleted when you close your browser (the so-called session cookie), while others remain on your computer for a longer period of time, sometimes even until you delete them manually (the so-called persistent cookie)..

Why do we use cookies?

Analytical or performance cookies help us improve the way our website works, for example by ensuring that users easily find what they are looking for. Those statistics do not contain personal information.

How do I see which cookies are installed and how do I delete them?

By using our website on a computer or mobile device, you agree to our Privacy and Cookies.

However, you can refuse cookies in most browsers. You can block our cookies by setting the cookies in your browser. You can find more information about cookies and how to delete and manage them at www.aboutcookies.org or click Help in your browser menu.

We may update this policy from time to time. The issue date is listed at the top of this policy. Changes in the technology, legislation and guidelines of the authorities may require that you know the activities that we undertake when it violates your privacy rights. You should check this page from time to time to make sure you are aware of any changes.
